"Costs matter, and when the government imposes costs on businesses it has a profound consequence ... if you do not keep the costs down and allow businesses to make a profit, they will go somewhere where they can make a profit."

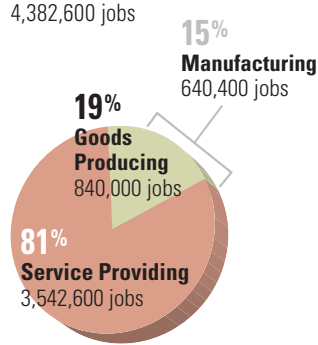

— Gov. John Kasich, March 7, 2011, in signing new incentives legislation

Legislative Update

- Gov. John Kasich scored his first legislative victory in February with passage of his plan to hand over job creation functions to a nonprofit corporation from the state government.
- On March 7, American Greetings CEO Zev Weiss announced at the bill-signing ceremony for new tax incentives that the company and its 2,000 jobs will stay in Northeast Ohio. Key provisions of the law include: a tax credit for businesses that received an offer of financial incentives from another state in 2010; and a requirement that businesses seeking this credit must agree to invest at least $25 million and retain at least 1,000 employees in Ohio.

- November saw the launch of InvestOhio, a $100-million effort to spur investments in Ohio's small businesses.

*GTR – Gross receipts tax.

Did You Know?

- Ohio State University's partnership with the Wright Center for Multifunctional Polymer Nanomaterials and Devices links nanotechnology to the economically important polymer manufacturing industries in Ohio, bringing together six universities and more than 60 industry partners.
- There have been 35 Cleveland Clinic spin-offs in the last decade and nearly three quarters of them have received equity investment — more than $500 million to date. Cleveland Clinic Innovations, the institution's commercialization and venture arm, also has transacted nearly 300 licenses.
- Wright-Patterson Air Force Base's total economic impact on the Dayton MSA for FY 2010 was over $4.5 billion.
- State agencies are evaluating the possibility of leasing the Ohio Turnpike in northern Ohio to a private operator.
