

THE MAGAZINE OF CORPORATE REAL ESTATE STRATEGY & ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

AGAZINE COMING JANUARY 2016

THE STATE OF THE STATES DATA PAGES

Don't miss the most detailed compendium of state data printed for the development industry.

Ever wished you could find the latest state information about corporate facility projects, legislative and incentives policy, FDI, wages and workforce demographics in one credible publication? These State of the States Data Pages will make that wish come true.

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT RANKINGS

Access to a plentiful and trainable workforce is among corporate site selectors' top location criteria. If states cannot demonstrate a commitment to delivering workers now and in the future with the skills companies require, they will soon be eliminated from consideration. Workforce development programs vary from state to state, so Site Selection has developed a set of regional rankings that measure states' progress according to factors that apply to all 50 states, including expenditures for workforce preparation programs, a national postsecondary and workforce readiness measure and number of ACT National Career Readiness Certificates. Now in their second year, these ranking give readers a new tool for evaluating location suitability across the U.S.

CUSTOMER CONTACT CENTERS

The contact center sector is constantly in flux as companies seek the right mix of language skills, labor rates and proximity to customers. This report will cover the world by examining the key regions of the Americas, EMEA and Asia to determine which locations are landing the significant projects and why.

LOGISTICS HUBS

Driven by air, sea, river, rail and highway proximity, the new world of supply-chain location analysis is bringing attention to some new spots on the globe. And it's causing some territories to dust off old assets and balance their reliance on imports with export-related manufacturing. Look to this report for insights into what's influencing corporate decision-making.
