Did You know?

- The Digital Media and Motion Picture Tax Credit allows eligible production companies to receive a tax credit on a sliding scale on qualified digital media and motion picture production, pre-production and post-production expenses incurred in the state. The credits must be claimed against the corporation business tax or insurance premium tax for the income year in which final certification for the qualified production is made. Any tax credit not used in the income year in which final certification is made may be carried forward for, or in, the three immediately succeeding income years. Production companies incurring production expenses between $100,000 and $500,000 are eligible for a 10 percent credit, between $500,000 and $1 million are eligible for a 15 percent credit, and over $1 million continue to be eligible for a 30 percent credit.

Legislative Update

- Legislation was passed that creates an angel investor tax credit, repeals certain tax credits that few organizations take advantage of, and modifies the job creation tax credit
- New time frames were established for completing the review of permit applications. A new program was created for expediting permits for projects of economic significance and a statewide permit ombudsman

- was established.
- A State Jobs Corps Task Force was created that is charged with studying the means by which Connecticut could implement a program similar to the Works Progress Administration (WPA) to use unemployed workers to construct public works projects in the state.
